Chairperson’s Message

In any given year, the legal services providers that WisTAF funds empower individuals in crisis to overcome legal problems and barriers — that is what they do; it is literally another day at the office for them. But it would be an understatement to say that 2020 brought new challenges for legal aid organizations and their clients. No one expected the upheaval of economic, social, and family life that descended on the world this past year. And as is the case, those who have the least resources have frequently been the most vulnerable to the chaos wrought by the COVID-19 pandemic. But I am proud to say that WisTAF grantees rose to meet the daunting unanticipated and additional challenges facing their clients.

With impressive energy and admirable adaptive capacity, and against the backdrop of a global health crisis, civil legal aid providers in Wisconsin found new ways to advocate for those in need. They identified problems that rose dramatically to the forefront in a wave of pandemic-driven phenomena — such as the urgent need for more assistance to the increased number of individuals seeking unemployment benefits in a suddenly-overloaded system — quickly assessing and tackling issues as they developed, and uniformly with their clients’ best interests in mind.

WisTAF also adapted to the new environment, thanks to the stellar leadership of Executive Director Rebecca Murray and our talented staff, JOLTA Program Manager and Office Manager Tehmina Islam; Grants Program Manager Carlos Arenas; and Communications and Development Manager Benson Gardner. In a time of turmoil, WisTAF’s dedicated and efficient team powered through, continuing to ensure that existing grants were administered seamlessly, as well as orchestrating grants for grantees who incurred pandemic-related, unexpected technological and sanitation expenses. Through their tireless efforts, WisTAF’s operations pressed forward without interruption. In fact, staff increased efforts to learn more about grantees’ needs through initiatives such as participation in the newly-formed Civil Legal Aid Alliance of Wisconsin and virtual grantee gatherings.

The events of 2020 also brought long-overdue attention to racial disparities in our society. Created this year, the Racial Justice Workgroup of the WisTAF Board of Directors is studying and implementing steps to ensure that we do everything in our power to identify and eliminate racial injustice within the organization. Likewise, we recognize that the need for racial equity must inform as we exercise our critical function as a fund of civil legal aid throughout the state. The workgroup is composed of Board and staff members, all of whom have embraced the group’s efforts and have generously shared their time and insights within an accelerated meeting schedule that reflects the importance of this work.

Amid the many changes in 2020, I am proud to acknowledge that one thing has remained constant: the unwavering commitment of our Board of Directors. Having served and been involved in various capacities with other non-profit organizations and their boards, I can say without hesitation that WisTAF’s board is special. Our Board members’ sincere interest in and support for the organization’s mission is evident in every meeting and every discussion that we have as a full board, in our Grants and Finance committees, and in our new Racial Justice Workgroup. Their collective stewardship is imbued with intelligence and empathy alike, qualities that immeasurably benefit WisTAF as a whole.

I would also be remiss if I did not recognize and express our collective gratitude for the many contributions of my predecessor, Larry Burnett, now Chairperson Emeritus. Under Larry’s direction, WisTAF’s board adopted strategic goals that powerfully define priorities designed to guide the organization to achieve its full potential. Because of Larry’s service, WisTAF is positioned to become an even more vital and energetic force prior to Larry’s service, WisTAF is positioned to become an even more vital and energetic force. Thanks to WisTAF-funded services, including counsel from attorneys, clients addressed life-altering challenges and obtained the justice they’re entitled under the law. All over Wisconsin, people avoided wrongfully losing their homes and jobs, secured their safety through restraining orders, protected their health or veterans’ benefits, and — one person at a time — helped strengthen their communities.

Impact

In 2020, the Wisconsin Trust Account Foundation (WisTAF) provided funding that directly helped 10,899 people, spread across every county in Wisconsin, to access the civil justice system. The flexibility of WisTAF funding also makes it play an outsized role in providers’ work to fill gaps in the civil justice system, making it easier to direct aid where people need it most. Grantees in WisTAF’s largest grant program, for example, served more than 30,000 people drawing on a range of fund sources in 2020.

Chairperson’s Message

On April 20, 2020, Catholic Charities of Milwaukee shared with a client that her application for unemployment benefits had been denied. The client was devastated. She had been working at a sandwich shop and had recently taken the position of a part-time dispatcher at a pharmacy, two roles that were deemed to be essential under the Governor’s stay-at-home order. The client’s case was going to be heard by a judge in two weeks. The client was even more devastated on April 21, 2020, when Catholic Charities informed her that she had been laid off from her part-time dispatch job.

The opposite of poverty is not wealth; the opposite of poverty is justice.

We’re proud to play a leadership role in Wisconsin’s civil legal aid landscape.

Executive Director’s Message

I doubt you’ll be surprised to hear 2020 posed challenges to clients, providers, and everyone else in the world of civil legal aid. What might surprise you is the extent to which organizations doing this work successfully collaborated, in the middle of those challenges, to increase our collective impact for people in Wisconsin. The civil legal aid field in Wisconsin is better positioned now than any time in recent memory to help bring about a future where everyone can access justice in pursuit of their health, safety, self-sufficiency, and independence, regardless of income.

As the pandemic unfolded, civil legal aid providers faced heartbreaking levels of need in the system. At the same time, like so many others, providers were developing remote operations, supporting family members, and learning to navigate a very new normal. But as always, they persevered. Despite the circumstances, the number of clients to whom our grantees provided legal assistance using funding from WisTAF in 2020 was nearly identical to the total number from 2019. (The hardships of the pandemic were evident, however, in a sharp increase in those who had to be turned away for lack of resources.)

Much like our grantees, WisTAF faced numerous challenges in 2020. But there were consolations to be found, and it turned out to be a year in which opportunity met preparation. Our 2019 strategic plan had identified goals to ratchet up WisTAF’s leadership to help more people access justice in Wisconsin. We added a new communications and development staff position just one month before the pandemic hit. We leveraged mutually beneficial banking relationships to stem the initial tide of IOLTA income loss. We researched and implemented tools to improve our data collection and management systems, and made prudent updates to our governing documents. And, we reaped the benefits of our pre-pandemic development of remote-work and meeting infrastructure. At the time, we had no idea how crucial our proactive efforts to define our role, prioritize our focus areas, and strengthen our resources would prove to be. And by we, I am referring to our accomplished “Wis-staff” and the truly dedicated WisTAF Board of Directors, for whom I am grateful.

During upheaval that could have made us reflexively retreat to an inward focus, postponing ambitious plans, I’m thrilled to say WisTAF did the opposite. We stepped up to the plate, offering support and leadership to our grantees and other organizations in the spirit of collaboration. In 2020, our staff took the lead in nurturing development of the coalition now taking root as the Civil Legal Aid Alliance of Wisconsin. We also organized five online gatherings of WisTAF grantee organizations in 2020. Our previous strategic goal was to organize only two gatherings, in person, in 2021 and 2022. We modified that goal because we quickly saw the need for the community to provide information and encouragement to each other during unprecedented times. In 2021, other civil legal aid stakeholders tell us the new level of coordination in the field facilitates everything from easing professional isolation to requesting increased public investment.

It’s because our board and staff worked deftly to define our strategic position prior to the pandemic that even during COVID-19, we were able to start a new systemic improvement project: our Racial Justice Workgroup founded and perceptive led by Att’y April Rockstead Barker, chairperson of our Board of Directors. As an organization dedicated to justice, this work is crucial to living up to our mission.

In the end, 2020 was the right time to work for justice—because widespread suffering proved we couldn’t afford not to, because our past groundwork gave us the opportunity to make a bigger difference than ever, and because (to paraphrase another quote from Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.) the time is always right to work for justice. Through our continued, intentional action, we expect the number of people in Wisconsin who can experience justice, safety, stability, and self-sufficiency will only grow.

Rebecca L. Murray, Executive Director

About Wisconsin Trust Account Foundation, Inc.

What good are laws in protecting your rights and liberties if you can’t afford a lawyer? There’s no constitutional guarantee to an attorney in any civil case—cases outside of criminal law. And yet, civil law addresses situations that stand in the way of achieving personal safety, security, and independence.

In a complex system like ours, without an attorney it’s often hard to know when the law is on your side, let alone how to argue your case or follow procedures to ensure your protection. All too often, people with limited means are shut out of meaningful participation in Wisconsin’s legal system.

The Wisconsin Trust Account Foundation, Inc. (WisTAF) exists to address this issue. A 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation established in 1986 by the Wisconsin Supreme Court, we are the leading state-based funder of legal aid in Wisconsin.

Mission

The Wisconsin Trust Account Foundation works with civil legal aid organizations in Wisconsin to increase access to justice. We oversee funds and invest in services and projects to help people resolve their legal problems.

Steadied by Strategy

WisTAF’s strategic plan continues to help us work toward long-range goals even while responding to unforeseen demands and areas of concern.

Our four strategic priorities, which address new ways of creating value for WisTAF stakeholders, remain unchanged:
• Engage in strategic grant making to fund unmet needs
• Diversity and expand and funding sources
• Educate the public and key stakeholders about WisTAF mission and results
• Increase collaboration/coordination among providers and stakeholders in the civil justice system

We’ve exercised fluidity on some goals within these areas. For example, our Pandemic Response Grants represented a pivot under the first priority area. The original plan is available at wistaf.org.

IOLTA Participating Financial Institutions

Institutions’ commitment to the communities they serve is reflected in their participation in the interest on Lawyers’ Trust Accounts (IOLTA) program, which provides funding support for civil legal aid.

A total of 177 Wisconsin financial institutions maintained IOLTA accounts during 2020. During this tough year, a large number joined the ranks of those that also waive service fees on the accounts, so that 100 percent of the interest supports community members in need. About 85 percent of IOLTA participating institutions now waive service fees. Additionally, we acknowledge the generosity of International Bank of Amherst and State Bank Financial for charitable contributions to address pandemic conditions. A full listing of eligible IOLTA participating financial institutions can be found at wisula.org.

Prime Partner Financial Institutions

Strong communities are good for business. Prime Partner financial institutions go above and beyond by paying interest at least 50 basis points (0.50 percent) higher than required under Wisconsin Supreme Court IOLTA participation requirements.

The Civil Legal Aid Alliance of Wisconsin (Civil LAAW)

During 2020, WISTAF provided the bulk of the staff time to ensure the successful take-off of the nascent collaboration which began in late 2019 among a large group of Wisconsin civil justice stakeholders. The coalition agreed on its name, Civil Legal Aid Alliance of Wisconsin (Civil LAAW), and made significant progress on organizational foundations which will be important in future endeavors. Civil LAAW is fulfilling the goal of strengthening, through collaboration, each member organization’s work toward a shared vision of helping all people access the justice system. Current projects include coordinated sharing of information and communications related to the state budget process as well as a racial justice training project. WISTAF is proud to play a leading role in this work alongside members of the Wisconsin Access to Justice Commission (representing organizations such as the Wisconsin Supreme Court, Wisconsin’s two law schools, community foundations, and the Wisconsin Counties Association), the State Bar of Wisconsin, many of WISTAF’s grantees, and smaller state-based funders of legal aid.

Grantees

WISTAF’s 2020 grant recipients continue to provide help to the most vulnerable members of our society with dedication, skill, and innovation.
Within a few years, 62-year-old "Joyce" went from homeowner and successful businesswoman to someone who for the first time in her life, couldn’t pay her rent. After a chronic disease made it impossible for her to work full-time, Joyce vacated her home. She moved in with her mother, faithfully paying her portion of the rent. But, her mother passed away just before COVID-19. With the pandemic choking Joyce’s niche in the fashion industry — proms, weddings, and other public occasions — Joyce had no way to earn extra money to cover her mother’s share. Legal Aid Society of Milwaukee met her at home, ensured she navigated government procedures correctly to stay in her apartment under the national eviction moratorium, then helped arrange with Joyce’s landlord for her to stay a few extra months at a reduced rate while she looked for a new place. This planned move-out arrangement let the landlord avoid a sudden vacancy while collecting some rent, while Joyce avoided the stigma of an eviction record that would have made her apartment search futile. She secured a new place to live and has planned to resume her business part-time as the pandemic receded.

The skills of dress designer "Joyce" are obvious from creations like these, but chronic disease, a family member’s death, and COVID-19 teamed up to imperil her housing. Within a few years, 62-year-old “Joyce” went from homeowner and successful businesswoman to someone who for the first time in her life, couldn’t pay her rent. After a chronic disease made it impossible for her to work full-time, Joyce vacated her home. She moved in with her mother, faithfully paying her portion of the rent. WisTAF’s largest and longest-standing grant program helps low-income people solve major problems in their lives. Grants to 15 organizations across the state provided services of legal advice or representation to more than 8,000 clients in 2020. In more than 60 percent of those cases, clients had a lawyer by their side, long term.

A conservative estimate of cases involving a specific monetary outcome indicated providers in the DLS program brought back a total of $27.8 million for clients in the form of rightful insurance coverage, child support, unemployment compensation, and more.
The Foreclosure Prevention and Community Redevelopment Legal Assistance program (FP/CRLA) catalyzes exciting new practices that help low-income individuals and families stay in their homes and become economically self-sufficient, while simultaneously working at the community level to stabilize and revitalize groups facing disadvantage.

Funded via a one-time settlement between the U.S. Department of Justice and Bank of America related to claims of mortgage-related fraud leading up to the financial crisis of 2007-2008, the FP/CRLA program supports strategies such as partnering with job centers in northern Wisconsin, building legal aid collaborations with neighborhood groups in Milwaukee, and providing mediation options in housing cases. Grantee organizations report the program has allowed transformational change in the way they do their work, and has paved the way for organizations to build expertise and experience in new areas of law.

Collaborative efforts are common in the FP/CRLA program, involving landlords, mortgage-lenders, tenants, homeowners, and community agencies. When a single mother of four faced possible homelessness due to eviction, the staff mediator from Metro Milwaukee Mediation Services, Inc. worked with numerous partners to navigate a complex solution helping the family to remain housed, the landlord to receive past-due rent, and the tenant's future not to be threatened. Community Advocates paid the tenant's past due rent, the Milwaukee County Housing Division helped identify a place for her to move and transfer her Section 8 public housing assistance voucher, and landlord's counsel helped negotiate with his client 10 additional days for the tenant to stay in the property so her new apartment would be ready and available. The mediator helped finalize the agreement so the eviction matter was dismissed; on moving out, Legal Aid Society of Milwaukee will assist with sealing the eviction record—critical so the renter will not lose her Section 8 voucher.

In 2020, WisTAF grantees used FP/CRLA funding to help more than 2,000 clients stay in their homes, find jobs, grow their businesses, or address other challenges. In cases where a specific monetary outcome was known at case closing, providers in the CRLA program brought back a total of $1,288,826 for 352 clients.

“"We are now known and trusted by neighborhood agencies that contact us regularly for legal assistance for residents and who we in turn contact regularly for feedback and insights. We have come light years in that regard and the WisTAF CRLA grant is the reason.”

— Colleen Foley, executive director, Legal Aid Society of Milwaukee

Demographics

WisTAF grants serve people from every county in Wisconsin, representing a diversity of races and backgrounds.
Financials

In 2020, WisTAF disbursed $2.8 million to serve 10,899 clients across Wisconsin. While significant, this funding falls far short of the estimated $90 million plus that would have been needed to meet the civil legal service needs of Wisconsin’s low-income families in the era even prior to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Fund Sources

WisTAF grants in recent years have drawn on the following fund sources.

Interest on Lawyers’ Trust Accounts (IOLTA)
In the IOLTA program, attorneys pool short-term or nominal deposits made on behalf of clients or third parties into one account. The interest generated by these accounts is remitted to WisTAF for use in grantmaking to support legal aid. Most participating financial institutions additionally waive fees or provide increased interest as a way to support their communities.

Public Interest Legal Services Fund (PILSF)
In 2005, the Wisconsin Supreme Court established the Public Interest Legal Services Fund (PILSF), citing its necessity in maintaining “the integrity and efficiency of the judicial system within this state” and “the heightened obligations of lawyers, both to our justice system and to assist this Court with the effective administration of justice.” The Fund plays a critical role in supplementing erratic IOLTA funding with a more stable revenue source for civil legal services for low-income Wisconsinites. PILSF funds are directly attributable to the state’s attorneys and judges, and are distributed throughout Wisconsin’s judicial districts.

State Appropriation
Wisconsin’s lawmakers and governor have in various years invested state budget resources for civil legal aid grants administered by WisTAF. The current state allocation of $500,000 per year in federal TANF funding began with the 2015-17 budget. The support comes through the Wisconsin Department of Children and Families for a WisTAF-administered grant program supporting legal services for survivors of domestic violence and sexual abuse (DVSA). A previous allocation came through the Department of Administration (DOA).

U.S. Dept. of Justice Settlement with Bank of America
Through a 2014 United States Department of Justice settlement with Bank of America, IOLTA programs nationwide received one-time funds for foreclosure prevention and community development legal assistance (TP/CBLA — see page 8).

Pro Hac Vice
By order of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, a portion of the pro hac vice admission fees paid by nonresident lawyers to participate in a particular action in Wisconsin is allocated to WisTAF to help support civil legal services for low-income and indigent persons.

Cy Pres
Wisconsin statutes require that WisTAF receive at least half of any residual funds left over from class action lawsuits filed in Wisconsin state court, in order to provide civil legal aid. In this category of funding, falling under the legal doctrine of cy pres, WisTAF can also receive other residual funds from class actions, restitution, settlements, or penalties.

Donations
WisTAF also receives donations from individuals, corporations, and any other source with an interest in providing access to justice in Wisconsin.
